Tempus-Rex adds new revenue management function to help small and medium sized firms be more profitable

Montreal, June 30, 2010 – To help small and medium firms optimize revenue management Tempus-Rex is pleased to announce the immediate availability of the Managing ID function. The Managing ID function allows a delegate within a law practice, consulting partnership or a professional services firm to consolidate the captured data from all associates using T-Rex. This function is critical in providing a holistic view of billable hours within a firm.

Revenue visibility is a key factor in enabling the management focus required to ensure that expected revenue turns into attained revenue. The Managing ID will allow business managers to see and track the evolution of billable hours within their organisation as time is captured.

The Tempus-Rex Managing ID function comes free of charge to users of Tempus-Rex.

Tempus-Rex is comprised of two components; the T-Rex mobile application, and the client portal. The T-Rex mobile application integrates with Blackberry functions without requiring professionals to change how they work. With T-Rex on the user's Blackberry, all phone calls, e-mails, calendar items or other activities that flow through the BlackBerry device are captured and immediately converted into billable hours on the data management site.

All captured time is tracked, managed and archived securely on the data management site located at www.tempus-rex.com. Time and captured data can also be downloaded in either .xls or .csv formats for integration with timesheet and billing systems.

T-Rex uses the proven TimeKM™ Mobile Engine currently installed on over 18,000 BlackBerry units worldwide. T-Rex was designed by service professionals for service professionals. The T-Rex mobile application is fully customizable to match the unique work habits of busy professionals and ensure ultimate productivity and increased revenues.
